

View this email in your browser

I Am Not Giving Up!

We've all had moments where we wonder if we can make it through what we are facing. Do we have what it takes? Is our faith in what we believe strong enough to carry us through it? Are we ready to face it?

Some days life can be challenging to the point where we want to say enough is enough. We get tired and weary. Holding on seems like climbing a mountain much higher than appears possible.

I had those moments in life when I was paralyzed and lost my memory, wondering if I could ever come back to a normal existence. It took a lot of courage, determination, and fight in me to find my life. I've had moments where I lost everything in life and had to discover what sustained me.

Regardless, some days my motto is "Today, no matter what, I keep going. I'm not giving up!" Sometimes, that is enough to get me through a difficult moment.

Quote:

We can only journey as far as we allow ourselves to travel.

#MindBodyThoughts

Want to change how you receive these emails?
You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list.

